“The impact of the Human Rights Campaign’s Corporate Equality Index over its 18-year history is profound. In this time, the corporate community has worked with us to adopt LGBTQ-inclusive policies, practices and benefits, establishing the Corporate Equality Index as a primary driving force for LGBTQ workplace inclusion in America and across the globe,” said HRC President Alphonso David. “These companies know that protecting their LGBTQ employees and customers from discrimination is not just the right thing to do – it is also the best business decision. In addition, many of these leaders are also advocating for the LGBTQ community and equality under the law in the public square. From supporting LGBTQ civil rights protections in the U.S. through HRC’s Business Coalition for the Equality Act, to featuring transgender and non-binary people in an ad in Argentina, to advocating for marriage equality in Taiwan – businesses understand their LGBTQ employees and customers deserve to be seen, valued and respected not only at work, but in every aspect of daily life.”

Executive Summary

Corporate Equality Index 2020

IN THIS 18TH EDITION OF THE HUMAN RIGHTS CAMPAIGN

Foundation's Corporate Equality Index, 686 businesses earned a 100 percent rating and the designation of being a "Best Place to Work for LGBTQ Equality." Top-rated CEI employers come from nearly every industry and region of the United States. Employers earning top ratings took concrete steps to ensure greater equity for LGBTQ workers and their families in the form of comprehensive policies, benefits and practices. The CEI rating criteria have three key pillars:

- Non-discrimination policies across business entities;
- Equitable benefits for LGBTQ workers and their families;
- Supporting an inclusive culture and corporate social responsibility.

Since 2002, the Human Rights Campaign Foundation has published the CEI report based largely on the annual CEI survey administered to hundreds of major global employers. The first Index in 2002 had 13 top-rated companies. The CEI universe includes Fortune magazine's 500 largest publicly traded businesses, American Lawyer magazine's top 200 revenue-grossing law firms (AmLaw 200) and hundreds of publicly and privately held mid- to large-sized businesses.

The CEI helps guide the wide-scale adoption of LGBTQ-specific practices and language within existing business structures. For example, where businesses enumerate federally protected categories of workers in their non-discrimination policies (e.g. based on race, religion, disability, etc.), the HRC Foundation evaluates them on the inclusion of "sexual orientation" and "gender identity" protections. In terms of benefits, the HRC Foundation evaluates employers on the provision of health insurance coverage for same- and different-sex spouses and partners. In addition, the HRC Foundation assesses the availability of routine, chronic care and transition-related medical coverage for transgender employees and dependents. Where major businesses regularly provide education, training and accountability measures on diversity and inclusion in the workplace, the HRC Foundation seeks to ensure these systems include the LGBTQ workforce. Lastly, major businesses have a range of engagement programs for the communities in which they operate and target markets such as advertising, public policy engagement, supplier diversity, philanthropy and sponsorship: we seek the inclusion of the LGBTQ community in these external engagement efforts.

By using the CEI as a guide, businesses can help ensure that their existing policy and benefits infrastructure is inclusive of the LGBTQ workforce and their families, resulting in greater recruitment and retention of a talented, diverse workforce. The CEI is a key roadmap to LGBTQ inclusion but it cannot serve as a holistic assessment of any employer's unique workplace culture or individual experiences: a CEI rating is one key evaluation metric among other factors in assessing any employer or provider of goods or services.

In addition to the depth of investment the top-rated businesses have made in the name of equality, the 2020 CEI shows an unprecedented breadth of new, participating businesses. This year's CEI contains 83 new businesses that opted into the survey.

The following report is reflective of verified data submitted to the HRC Foundation as well as independent research on non-responding businesses. Wherever credit can be verified, all ranked businesses will receive it, irrespective of their participation in the CEI survey.

The HRC Foundation has worked with thousands of businesses to promote workplace equality for LGBTQ workers.

686 Businesses earning 100 percent under the most stringent criteria to date.

This year's CEI reflects growth across nearly every measurement category from the adoption of inclusive non-discrimination policies to equitable benefits to efforts to engage the LGBTQ community.

Transgender Inclusion in the Workplace: Accelerating Progress

The most significant progress in the CEI has been the wide-scale adoption of transgender-inclusive initiatives across businesses.

- A full 91 percent of the Fortune 500 – including both companies that participate in the CEI survey and those that do not – have gender identity protections enumerated in their nondiscrimination policies (up from 3 percent in 2002) and 98 percent of the entire CEI universe of businesses offer explicit gender identity non-discrimination protections (up from 5 percent in 2002).
- 65 percent of the Fortune 500 and 89 percent of the CEI universe of businesses offer transgender-inclusive health care coverage, up from 0 in 2002 and 19 times as many businesses as ten years ago. 100 new employers offer this coverage in the 2020 report.
- Over five-hundred and seventy major businesses have adopted gender transition guidelines for employees and their teams to establish best practices in transgender inclusion.

The business case for equality knows no borders

¹ At HRC we use the acronym "LGBTQ" for the greater lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer communities. We recognize this acronym is U.S. centric and that the community recognizes different acronyms in different parts of the world. When working in different communities, we adjust our language to reflect local customs (i.e., our Mexican-based workplace inclusion program uses LGBT rather than LGBTQ).

Accelerating Global Equality

Over the nearly 20 year history of the Corporate Equality Index, one thing is patently clear: equality is good business. Being an LGBTQ-inclusive¹ employer is good for recruitment, retention, engagement and - ultimately - the bottom line. What began as largely U.S. and European efforts to create LGBTQ-inclusive workplaces is now a much larger conversation. In a global marketplace, equality knows no borders.

Working hand-in-hand with businesses, HRC elevated the case that inclusion efforts couldn't stop at any one border. Employee mobility alone necessitates that LGBTQ employees understand they are valued and protected members of the workforce wherever they are assigned. As companies adopted inclusive policies and practices in the U.S. and elsewhere, HRC encouraged them to consider how this impacted the workforce in countries less friendly - both in terms of the law and the culture - to LGBTQ people. In 2016, the Corporate Equality Index criteria was expanded to require that companies with global operations extend their nondiscrimination policies across all their operations. This change helped drive wider spread adoption of nondiscrimination policies that include sexual orientation and gender identity protections. In 2016, 54% of CEI-rated companies had global operations and 95% of those extended their LGBTQ-inclusive nondiscrimination policies globally. With the 2020 CEI, 56% of CEI-rated companies have global operations and 99% extend those protections globally.

And the progress doesn't stop with nondiscrimination policies. Companies continue to double-down on their global LGBTQ inclusion efforts through the expansion of equitable benefits such as domestic partner recognition and transgender-inclusive benefits to employee engagement efforts such as the expansion of employee resource groups for LGBTQ workers and their allies. While the CEI criteria does not currently score these efforts, we do collect information on global efforts in: domestic partner benefits, transgender inclusive benefits, global chapters of employee resource groups and whether companies engage externally with the LGBTQ community outside of the U.S. Across all categories, a majority of companies report extending these benefits and inclusive practices beyond the borders of their U.S.

Spotlight: HRC's Equidad Programs

Thanks to our commitment to LGBTQ workplace inclusion in the U.S., hundreds of thousands of LGBTQ workers and their families benefit from inclusive workplace policies, practices and benefits. Following the unprecedented success of the CEI, with many U.S.-based multinationals eager to replicate practices across their global footprint, the HRC Foundation saw an opportunity to expand its work with the business community in the Americas.

With the CEI as a blueprint, HRC established a formal program aimed to grow LGBTQ-inclusive practices and policies across workplaces in Mexico. After years of working with corporate partners, civil society organizations and other stakeholders, including embassies and the American Chamber of Commerce, the HRC Foundation partnered with ADIL (Alianza por la Diversidad e Inclusión Laboral) to officially launch the HRC Equidad MX: Global Workplace Equality Program in 2016. Since its inception, the pioneering program — modeled after HRC's CEI — has experienced unprecedented growth in promoting LGBTQ-inclusive workplaces throughout the country.

The groundbreaking success of HRC Equidad MX is reflected in the increasing number of companies participating in the survey and achieving top ratings for LGBTQ workplace equality — last year, more than 100 employers earned top ratings and the HRC Foundation's designation of "Best Places to Work for LGBTQ Equality" or "Mejores Lugares para Trabajar LGBT" in the 2020 HRC Equidad MX report. This represents a robust 73% increase in top-rated employers over the prior year and an incredible 393% increase since the program's inaugural report in 2018.

Next, the HRC Foundation expanded its LGBTQ workplace inclusion efforts in the region by partnering with Fundación Iguales, Chile's largest LGBTQ advocacy group, to promote LGBTQ inclusive policies and protections among Chilean businesses and corporations through HRC Equidad CL. Launched in 2018, the Chilean-based program assessed more than 30 companies in its inaugural 2019 report and 15 of them received the HRC Foundation's designation of "Mejores Lugares para Trabajar LGBT". In the upcoming months, the HRC Foundation will release the results of the second annual survey benchmarking companies leading LGBTQ-inclusion in Chile and South America.

Through the CEI, Equidad MX and Equidad CL programs, the HRC Foundation has established guidelines to implement LGBTQ-inclusive policies, best practices and benefits across national and international corporations impacting more than 24.4 million employees worldwide. Findings

Nondiscrimination Policies

Clearly enumerated nondiscrimination protections based on sexual orientation and gender identity are essential to LGBTQ workforce equity and inclusion.

The policies help to ensure:

- Equal opportunity for all employees;
- Diverse talent acquisition and, retention for broader economic growth; and
- Keeping the employer apace with changing legal and public opinion landscapes.

Furthermore, these policies represent minimal upfront costs and rates of litigation upon implementation are consistent with other protected classes.

Federal laws clearly and consistently afford protections from workplace discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex (including pregnancy), national origin, age (40 or older), disability and genetic information but do not explicitly afford these same protections on the basis of sexual orientation or gender identity. Currently, the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission is accepting complaints of sexual orientation and gender identity discrimination in employment based on Title VII's prohibition against sex discrimination. The Supreme Court of the United States will be issuing a ruling this year determining whether Title VII's prohibition on sex discrimination should be interpreted to prohibit discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation and/or gender identity. In addition, some states have passed laws and ordinances to establish workplace protections for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer employees, but only 21 states explicitly provide workplace protections on the basis of gender identity and 22 on the basis of sexual orientation. Despite this patchwork of state laws and federal guidance, private sector employers have far outpaced lawmakers in the implementation of fully inclusive nondiscrimination policies.

Sexual Orientation Protections

Criterion 1a Businesses That Prohibit Discrimination Based on Sexual Orientation in U.S. and Global Operations

99% of CEI-rated employers provide employment protections on the basis of sexual orientation in the U.S. and globally.

Gender Identity Protections

Criterion 1b Businesses That Prohibit Discrimination Based on Gender Identity in U.S. and Global Operations

98% of CEI-rated employers provide employment protections on the basis of gender identity in the U.S. and globally.

This criterion has seen the most rapid growth of any other element of the CEI. In 2002, just 5 percent of the rated businesses included gender identity in their U.S. non-discrimination policies and every year that figure has climbed to today's strong majority with these protections in place. Ninety-eight percent of participants have gender identity protections in their U.S. policy, a 94 point increase since the CEI's inception.

- Percentage with Gender Identity in their U.S. Non-Discrimination Policy

Equal Benefits

IN THE U.S., EMPLOYER-PROVIDED HEALTH INSURANCE IS THE SINGLE LARGEST

source of health care coverage. Competitive employer-provided benefits' packages are critical to attracting and retaining talent and ensuring LGBTQ-inclusive benefits to employees and their families is an overall low-cost, high-return proposition for businesses. In addition, equitable benefits structures align with the principle of equal compensation for equal work. Apart from actual wages paid, benefits account, on average for approximately 30 percent of employees' overall compensation (BOL 2019). Therefore, employers have amended many benefits structures to ensure that this valuable bundle of benefits is equitably extended to their workforce, irrespective of sexual orientation and gender identity.

Most employers report to the HRC Foundation an overall increase of less than 3.5 percent of total benefits costs when they implement partner benefits and marginal increases related to transgender-inclusive health care coverage (i.e. a fraction of a decimal point of cost calculations).

When denied equal benefits coverage, the cost to LGBTQ workers and their families is profound. The HRC Foundation rates and gives guidance on two key components of equal health insurance benefits:

- Parity between benefits available for employees; spouses and partners; and
- Affirmative transgender-inclusive healthcare benefits and removal of all broad exclusions to coverage across plan offerings.

In addition, employers are rated on having full parity across their entire suite of benefits - including non-healthcare benefits such as leave, retirement and others - between spouses and partners.

LGBTQ-inclusive benefits packages are:

- Necessary for talent acquisition and retention and broader economic growth;
- Equal compensation for equal work;
- Helping employers keep apace with changing legal landscape and workforce expectations; and,
- Minimal upfront costs (on average 1% increase for corporate employers' overall health insurance costs).

Continued Need for Partner Benefits

The premise of parity drives businesses meeting the partner benefits and transgender-inclusive health care coverage criteria. In its CEI scoring, the HRC Foundation does not penalize an employer if a particular benefit is not offered to any employees, but holds employers accountable to provide equitable benefits to LGBTQ employees and their families across the complete package of benefits offered. For example, where routine care, hormone therapies and medically necessary surgeries are available to cisgender (people who are not transgender), these same health care benefits must also be extended to transgender plan enrollees. Many employers have begun to comprehensively address health insurance coverage for transgender individuals, and most have experienced little to no premium increases as a result.

Since 2002, The CEI has required parity between spousal and partner benefits. After the United States v. Windsor and before the Obergefell v. Hodges Supreme Court rulings, HRC released a position paper cautioning against exposing LGBTQ employees to legal risks by switching to a marriage-only standard for accessing health care coverage.

After the 2015 U.S. Supreme Court decision in Obergefell v. Hodges, ruling that marriage is a fundamental right to which same-sex couples should have the same access as opposite-sex couples, bringing marriage equality nationwide, employers have sought to do the right thing in the name of equality. While marriage equality is undoubtedly a monumental step towards full equality, LGBTQ individuals remain at risk for discrimination in many other walks of life. LGBTQ Americans can get legally married but remain at risk of being denied services for who they are or risk being fired simply for getting married and wearing their wedding ring to the office the next day. Lacking protections based on sexual orientation and gender identity through federal and consistent state law, it remains legal to discriminate against LGBTQ individuals in employment, housing, and access to public places, federal funding, credit, education and jury service. Until LGBTQ Americans have full equality through the federal Equality Act, the CEI standards will continue to fill the void left by federal and state law, better serving the U.S. workforce.

While HRC never changed its partner benefits mandate, a small number of companies moved to spousal benefits only in the middle of the 2016 CEI season. These employers assumed that with the marriage ruling, the need for partner benefits was gone. This is not true and in fact, over the last decade most businesses that have offered same-sex partner benefits also extended these to different-sex partners to better meet the needs of their own diverse workforces. In other words, businesses have been decoupling benefits from the legal definition of marriage. Out of an abundance of understanding for participating companies, credit was given for spousal equivalent benefits only until the 2019 CEI in which, after wide scale education and outreach efforts, the standard for both same- and different-sex domestic partner benefits was enforced. 732 businesses ultimately met the standard in 2019 and 836 did in 2020. The CEI continues to reflect best practices for LGBTQ workers and their families.

Understanding Transgender-Inclusive Health Care Coverage

In 2004 the HRC Foundation identified transgender-inclusive health care coverage as an area of educational outreach and criteria inclusion.

From 2006 through the 2011 CEI, a top score meant businesses needed to mitigate at least one exclusion among five critical categories of transgender health care, namely: mental health; pharmacy benefits for hormone therapy; medical visits and lab procedures related to hormone therapy; surgical procedures; and, short-term leave for surgical procedures. While awareness of barriers to transgender health care coverage steadily increased, a majority of CEI-rated businesses plateaued in offering mental health care coverage and/ or short-term leave for surgical procedures but did not mitigate the exclusions related to other medically necessary treatments.

In 2009 the HRC Foundation announced a major change to what would be the 2012 CEI criteria: to earn a top rating of 100 percent, a business needed to not just mitigate one or more exclusions, but address the root problem of transgender exclusion in coverage and fully affirm health care coverage for medically necessary transition-related care and other routine and chronic conditions. The HRC Foundation embarked on a massive campaign of educational and consultative efforts to address health care and insurance disparities for the transgender population and their families, including: outreach to leading health insurance companies; direct consultation with both fully and self-insured employers to modify their health care plans and collection and dissemination of cost and utilization data from leading businesses.

In this year's CEI, a record 933 of CEI-rated businesses offer at least one plan option with current market standard coverage, up from 0 in 2002, 49 in the 2009 CEI report, 278 in the 2013 CEI report, 418 in the 2015 CEI report, 647 in the 2017 CEI report and 750. This year, of the 942 businesses with at least one inclusive plan, 900 also eliminated all exclusions across plans.

The adoption of transgender-inclusive health care coverage continues to be an area of significant growth in the CEI translating to meaningful access to critical coverage and care for transgender employees and dependents.

Equal Benefits

Criterion 2a & 2b

CEI-Rated Employers Provide Equal Spousal and Partner Health Care Benefits

79% of this year's rated businesses provide equal spousal and partner health care benefits.

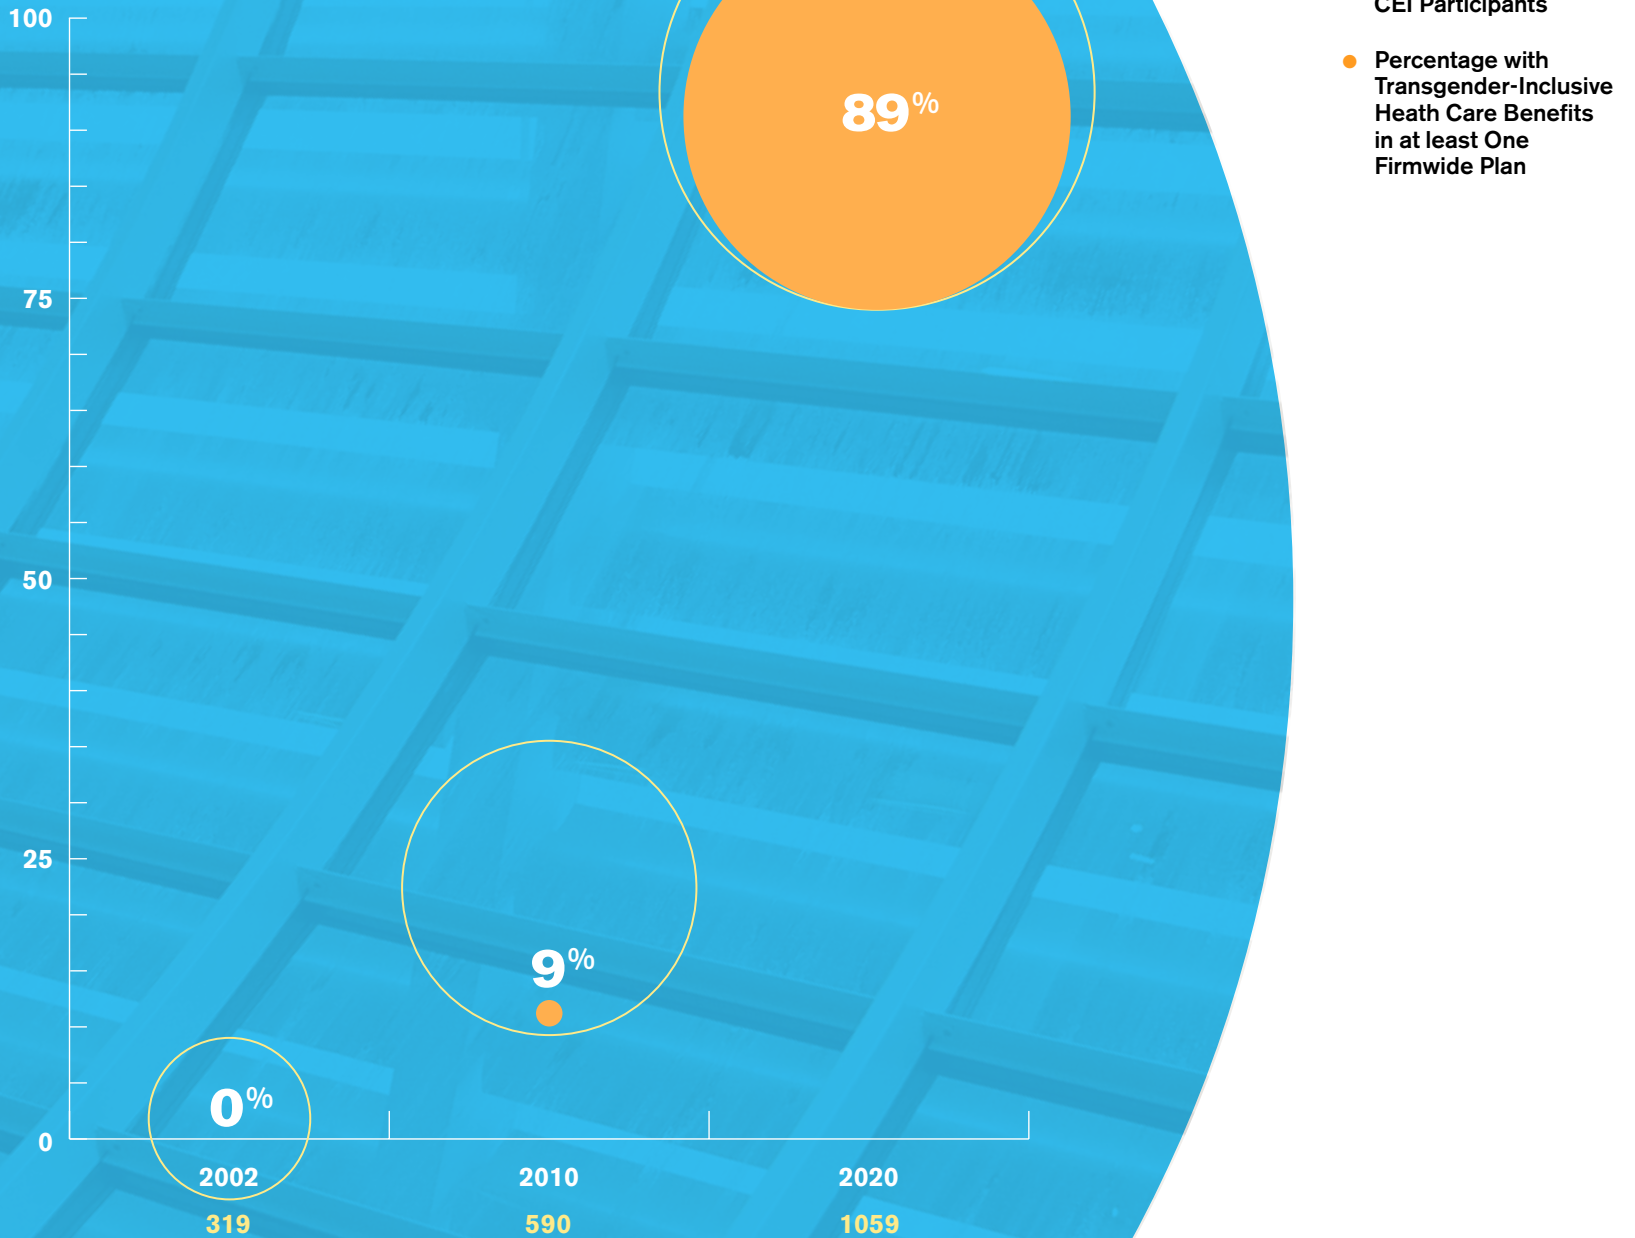

Criterion 2c

CEI-Rated Employers Provide Affirmative Transgender-Inclusive Health Care Benefits

85% of this year's rated businesses provide affirmative transgender-inclusive health care benefits and have removed all broad exclusions to coverage across plan offerings.

These benefits are critical for the health and well-being of individual transgender people. According to businesses' reporting to the HRC Foundation, making these benefits accessible comes at an overall negligible cost to the employers' overall health insurance plans. This holds true across industries.

CEI 2020 Transgender-Inclusive Benefits

Organizational Competency in LGBTQ Inclusion

Criterion 3a Competency Training, Metrics, Resources or Accountability Measures

Equitable policies and benefits are critical to LGBTQ inclusion in the workforce but alone are not sufficient to support a truly inclusive culture within a workplace. Employers recognize that beyond the letter of a policy, additional programming and educational efforts are necessary. Some of the most common forms of LGBTQ inclusion efforts are: diversity training programs, LGBTQ metrics and evaluation mechanisms and gender transition guidelines.

Many employers integrate these educational programs into already existing diversity and inclusion programs. To obtain full credit in this criterion, employers must show at least three types of organizational competency programming. This comprehensive metric is provided as accountability for employers to devote resources to creating and maintaining a climate of inclusion.

In light of policy and benefits expansion, the HRC Foundation has rolled out a number of studies and resources aimed at making the policies and benefits part of an everyday workplace practice of LGBTQ inclusion. In 2018, the HRC Foundation released A Workplace Divided: Understanding the Climate for LGBTQ Workers Nationwide demonstrating that despite significant progress, 46% of LGBTQ workers say they are closeted at work. The commonly used Transgender Inclusion In the Workplace: A Toolkit for Employers, is a comprehensive resource to guide employer transgender inclusion efforts. The toolkit includes the HRC Foundation's best practice guidance on transgender inclusive policies and practices (including sample policies) as well as guidance for implementing transgender-inclusive healthcare benefits. Addressing the gap in training and education materials, the toolkit includes scenario-based learning that uses real life examples from HRC's work with businesses to illuminate the everyday experiences of transgender workers on the job.

This resource and additional materials that help employers close the gap between inclusive policy and practice can be found at www.hrc.org/workplace.

Business invest in organizational competency programs because:

- Policy does not equal practice;
- Despite progress, nearly 50% of LGBT workers nationwide remain closeted on the job;
- Invisible diversity requires unique training focus and defined safe space programs and resources;
- Senior level buy-in and accountability metrics effect change quickly and for the long term; and,
- Retaining workers is largely about everyday experiences on the job.

Gender Transition Guidelines

Having easily understandable and accessible guidelines on the gender transition process is a best practice in setting forth some structure to support a respectful and successful workplace transition for transgender and non-binary individuals. The guidelines are aimed at establishing common reference points and expectations for all involved, including the transitioning employee, HR, management and work groups, to further everyone's goal of a respectful transition process that retains the employee and individual engagement.

A record 576 major employers submitted gender transition guidelines – the vast majority of which were adopted from the HRC Foundation's template guidelines (available at www.hrc.org/transtoolkit).

From suggestions on how to have respectful and informative conversations about the topic of transgender and non-binary inclusion in the workplace to the administrative changes to one's personnel and workplace documents, these guidelines clearly delineate responsibilities and expectations of transitioning employees, their supervisors, colleagues and other staff.

The number of major employers with gender transition guidelines

Senior Leadership Metrics of Inclusion

A steadily growing number of top employers include senior leader engagement around the business's diversity and inclusion goals. By holding their senior leaders accountable through senior performance evaluation, these businesses are raising the structural impact and incentives around diversity and inclusion growth. Forty-eight percent of CEI-rated employers allow senior leaders to submit LGBTQ-focused diversity efforts as part of their annual review of contributions to organizational diversity and inclusion goals.

Criterion 3b

LGBTQ/Allies Employee Groups and Diversity Councils

Many large employers have formally recognized employee resource groups (also known as an employee network, business resource or affinity groups) for diverse populations of their workforce, including women, people of color, veterans, parents, people of varied abilities and LGBTQ/ allied people. These groups' purpose is two-fold:

- To foster a sense of community and visibility of these diverse populations within a business; and
- To leverage each unique populations' networks and skills to help accomplish business goals such as market innovation, recruitment and retention of talent.

ERGs are great platforms for leadership opportunities for LGBTQ and allied employees to better their own work environments. In addition, the reach of many ERGs extends beyond the everyday affairs of an employer to policymaking, representing the employer at professional events and external activities, participating in prospective employee recruitment efforts, mentoring, and other retention-focused programming.

LGBTQ/A ERGs empower employees as change agents and promote inclusion for LGBTQ employees within the workplace. Recognizing the differences in businesses rated in the CEI, this criterion can also be met with an organization wide diversity council or working group with a mission that specifically includes LGBTQ diversity and inclusion.

94% of CEI-rated employers have an employee resource group or diversity council that includes LGBTQ and allied employees and programming.

The Role of Allies

Employees who do not identify as LGBTQ themselves, but are invested in equality and workplace inclusion are increasing their numbers within ERG ranks. While ERGs' mission statements are specific to LGBTQ inclusion, more and more, allies are encouraged to join as membership is not limited to those who are LGBTQ but open to all supporters of equality. Of those companies with an officially recognized LGBTQ employee group, 95 percent reported being expressly for LGBTQ and allied employees. ERGs have embraced allies as members of the full LGBTQ community, as allies bring their own unique voice and vantage point to workplace equality.

Executive Champions

The profile and impact of an employee resource groups is greatly enhanced by an active executive champion for the group. Ninety-five percent of employee groups rated in the CEI are sponsored by an executive champion. A majority (58 percent) of executive champions identify as allies, while 34 percent reported being openly LGBTQ.

Criterion 3c

Public Commitment

Businesses That Positively Engage the External LGBTQ Community

of CEI-rated businesses met the standard of demonstrating a least three efforts of public commitment to the LGBTQ community.

Promoting Business Growth
Through Visibility:
Respectful
Advertising &
Talent Recruiting
Efforts

Businesses have extensive programs to engage with key markets and the communities in which they operate. Public commitment in the CEI is measured through a number of individual engagements, namely through marketing, advertising and recruitment efforts, philanthropic contributions, LGBTQ supplier diversity and public policy weigh-in. Additionally, the CEI includes a set of standards around foundational giving to fully align a business's actions with its core values and to raise the bar for corporate social responsibility.

Businesses see advantages in going public with their commitment to equality, including:

- Reputational benefits to supporting equality groups and programs;
- Corporate case for LGBTQ legal equality: they are on right side of history and eliminate barriers to investment;
- Attracting and retaining next generation of workers and consumers – the importance of communicating pro-equality messages to millennials; and,
- LGBTQ public support is seen as a bellwether for broader issues of diversity and inclusion.

Professional events such as the annual Out & Equal Workplace Summit, Lavender Law conference and Reaching Out MBA career expo are filled with highly rated CEI employers looking to attract diverse employees. Employers' presence at these and other events sends a clear message to potential employees that LGBTQ diversity is part of company culture, and that LGBTQ candidates are valued as the best and the brightest across industries, geographies and trades.

Ad campaigns and sponsorships further this message of company values to the public. Increasingly, ads with authentic images of LGBTQ people are featured in both LGBTQ media outlets and general press alike. Corporate philanthropic activities ranging from financial support to in-kind donations of products or services can bolster a business's profile in the LGBTQ community.

Supporting the LGBTQ Community:
Philanthropy

Corporate giving to organizations promoting LGBTQ health, education or political efforts further demonstrates this commitment to broader LGBTQ equality. Typically, these efforts have a strategic connection to the core mission of a business, such as a law firm's pro bono legal support of organizations tasked with direct legal representation of LGBTQ individuals.

Corporate Giving
Guidelines

The HRC Foundation has always held businesses accountable for the types of organizations receiving their philanthropic dollars. Historically, the CEI had a mechanism to account for foundational corporate giving to any organization whose explicit mission included efforts to undermine LGBTQ equality. This framework was widened in 2016 to hold companies accountable for any giving to a non-religious organization with an explicit policy of discrimination against LGBTQ people. This requirement sets the standards around responsible foundational giving and ensures that a top rated business does not provide philanthropic support to organizations whose values do not align with theirs.

Supplier Diversity
Programs:
Aligning
LGBTQ with Other Diverse
Business Segments

The requirement is that a top-rated business must implement internal requirements prohibiting company or law firm philanthropic giving to nonreligious organizations that have a written policy of discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity or have a policy explicitly permitting its own chapters, affiliates, etc. to discriminate.

Supplier diversity programs ensure that the procurement process includes specific opportunities for minority-owned businesses, including women-owned, veteran-owned and, more recently, LGBTQ-owned businesses. Supplier diversity initiatives have existed in the business community for at least three decades, going back to the inception of such groups as the National Association of Women Business Owners and the National Minority Business Council, both founded in the early 1970s to promote the inclusion of these under-utilized entrepreneurial groups. Furthermore, there are federal initiatives such as the Center for Veterans Enterprise that is designed to assist U.S. veterans in launching and thriving in private business. These initiatives intend to give more equitable opportunities to those would-be small business owners who are more likely to face social and practical barriers to success.

The National LGBT Chamber of Commerce began certifying LGBTQ-owned small businesses in 2002, a process that requires substantiation of majority LGBTQ ownership in a business and verification of a business' good standing in the community. Supplier diversity initiatives are a win-win relationship for both the LGBTQ-owned small businesses and the businesses that contract them. 87% of CEI-rated businesses with supplier diversity programs specifically include LGBTQ-owned enterprises in their programs. These businesses are enjoying a multitude of benefits, including a supply chain that better reflects the diverse communities in which they operate, and in turn garnering sharper innovation and business solutions.

Criterion 3d

Corporate Social Responsibility

Inclusive Contractor/Supplier Non-Discrimination Standards and Philanthropic Giving Guidelines

82% of CEI-rated employers met the criteria of having LGBTQ-inclusive contractor/supplier non-discrimination standards and philanthropic giving guidelines in place.

A business's non-discrimination policies shouldn't be limited to human resources or diversity and inclusion. The CEI's Corporate Social Responsibility criteria ensure that sexual orientation and gender identity protections apply to those standards that businesses require their vendors or suppliers to adhere to, as well as recipients of their philanthropic funds.

Large businesses typically rely on other businesses for goods or services, and businesses of the size included in the CEI typically have set standards and guidelines already embedded in their procurement. In order to ensure that suppliers act in a manner that adheres to a business's own standards, it is necessary for businesses to establish standards of conduct that set expectations for behavior of their suppliers. In this year's CEI, 89% of rated employers have supplier mandates with respect to non-discrimination in place, and 98% of these mandates explicitly include sexual orientation and gender identity alongside other named categories.

The CEI has a systematic tradition of holding companies accountable for what kinds of organizations receive their philanthropic dollars. The CEI has always had a mechanism to account for foundational corporate giving to any organization whose explicit mission included efforts to undermine LGBTQ equality, and beginning in the 2016 CEI, this framework widened to hold companies accountable for any giving to a non-religious organization with an explicit policy of discrimination against LGBTQ people. This requirement, which 82% of 2020 participants met, sets the standards around responsible foundational giving and ensures that a top-rated business does not provide philanthropic support to organizations whose values do not align with theirs.

Equality in the Public Square

OVER THE LAST FIVE YEARS, THE RATES OF CORPORATE ENGAGEMENT ON MATTERS

of LGBTQ equality under the law and LGBTQ-related public policy have skyrocketed. As hundreds anti-LGBTQ bills proliferated across the states over the last several years of legislative sessions, businesses spoke out and rebuked attempts to undermine LGBTQ civil rights at record rates from state-to-state. These corporate leaders are speaking out not just on principle but also because anti-LGBTQ bills that attempt to curb access to public services for transgender people, or deny basic services to LGBTQ families, or preempt local non-discrimination ordinances ultimately put their employees and their families, as well as their customers, at risk.

CEI-rated employers are on record supporting broad issues of LGBTQ equality at the local, state and federal levels as well as through amicus briefs with the courts because they know equality is good for business.

HRC's Business Coalition for the Equality Act is a group of over 260 leading U.S. employers that support the Equality Act, federal legislation that would provide the same basic protections to LGBTQ people as are provided to other protected groups under federal law. Coalition member companies represent nearly every industry, employ over 11.6 million people in the U.S., command over $4.9 trillion in revenue and have operations in all 50 states.

Private sector support for the federal Equality Act surged in the last year. At present, 264 major employers are signatories on HRC's Business Coalition for the Equality Act.

2020 Corporate Equality Index Rating System and Methodology

The HRC Foundation's CEI rating system is designed for mid to large businesses (500 full time employees and above) and divided into three key criteria categories:

- Non-discrimination policies across business entities;
- Equitable benefits for LGBTQ workers and their families;
- Supporting an inclusive culture and corporate social responsibility.

Launched in 2002, the CEI is the first internationally recognized benchmarking report for businesses to gauge their level of LGBTQ workplace inclusion against competitors.

In addition to growing the number of highly-rated employers, the CEI has seen success in the reach of the survey. The number of employers rated from the first CEI to the present has expanded from 319 to 1059, encompassing all major industry sectors.

The largest and most successful U.S. employers are invited to participate in the CEI and are identified through the following lists:

- Fortune magazine's 1,000 largest publicly traded businesses (2018 Fortune 1000) and
- American Lawyer magazine's top 200 revenue grossing law firms (2018 AmLaw 200).
- Additionally, any private-sector, for-profit employer with 500 or more full-time U.S. employees can request to participate, including those that are privately held.

Note on timing of the lists. Due to the staggered timelines of the ranking and contact lists made available, the ranking lags behind the CEI publication by approximately one year..*

How We Obtain the Information

The primary source of information for the Corporate Equality Index rating each business received is the CEI survey sent every year to previous and prospective respondents. The web-based survey included links to sample policies and other guidance on the HRC Foundation website.

HRC Foundation staff provided additional assistance and direct consultation throughout the process and reviewed submitted documentation (required within each section) for appropriate language and consistency with survey answers.

Invitations for the CEI 2020 survey were emailed and mailed in July 2019 and responses were due back October 2019. If a business had previously participated in the CEI, surveys were first sent to the individuals responsible for prior submissions. If a business had not previously participated in the CEI, surveys were sent to the chief executive officer or managing partner of the firm, as well as the highest-level executive/s responsible for human resources, diversity, communications or community engagement when it was possible to obtain their contact information. The information required to generate CEI ratings for businesses is difficult to ascertain from public records alone. In addition to the self-reporting provided through the CEI survey, we investigated and cross-checked the policies and practices of the rated businesses, any connections with organizations that engage in anti-LGBTQ activities and news accounts of possible efforts that undermine LGBTQ equality writ-large (e.g. through case law efforts or public policy lobbying actions). Employers were not rated until all appropriate information had been gathered and verified to the extent possible. Businesses were invited to provide HRC Foundation staff with any additional information or updates before this report went to print.

In total, the sources used include:

- The HRC Foundation's CEI survey;
- Internal Revenue Service 990 tax filings reviewed for any business foundation's gifts to anti-LGBTQ groups;
- Case law and news accounts regarding findings of discrimination and corporate responsibility and the LGBTQ community at-large; and,
- Individuals that report information to HRC Foundation.

If a business was found to have a connection with an anti-LGBTQ organization or activity, the HRC Foundation contacted the business and provided an opportunity to respond and ensure, to the best of its ability, that no such action would occur in the future and to mitigate the harm done. Businesses unwilling to do so are penalized 25 points from their overall rating through Criterion 4.

Official and Unofficial Ratings

The HRC Foundation may rate businesses that have not submitted a survey this year if the business had submitted a survey in previous years and the information is determined to be accurate, or if the HRC Foundation has obtained sufficient information to provide an individual rating. In both cases, the HRC Foundation notified the business of the official rating and gave them an opportunity for any updates or clarification prior to the report release. Fortune 500-ranked businesses that after multiple invitations have never responded to the CEI survey were evaluated independently and have designated unofficial ratings listed in gray in Appendices B and C (none earned a 100 percent and are therefore not in Appendix A). The HRC Foundation proactively evaluates these 122 Fortune- ranked companies for two key reasons:

- To provide the public with accurate information on these key employers; and
- To ensure the CEI is truly a benchmarking report among peers.

No matter the rating, any business that participates in the CEI is taking on a transparent, credible process of LGBTQ inclusion. Because LGBTQ workers and prospective employees must navigate the gaps in federal and state protections that affect their employment decisions, our staff views the research on these businesses through this same lens, ascertaining what we can from publicly available information and applying those findings to our CEI criteria.

The HRC Foundation commends those employers that have committed to the public and transparent process of the CEI survey and we invite these 122 companies to do the same.

In total, the CEI 2020 contains official ratings for 359 Fortune 500 businesses, 472 Fortune 1000 businesses, 152 law firms and 435 additional major businesses. An additional 122 Fortune 500 businesses have unofficial ratings, bringing the total to 1181 rated businesses. Findings in the 2020 CEI report are based on the 1059 officially rated businesses.

* During the CEI survey cycle, the HRC Foundation became aware of an app distributed in Google's Play Store that supports the practice of so-called "conversion therapy." Sometimes known as "reparative therapy," so-called "conversion therapy" includes a range of dangerous and discredited practices that falsely claim to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression. Such practices have been rejected by every mainstream medical and mental health organization for decades. Minors are especially vulnerable, and conversion therapy can lead to depression, anxiety, drug use, homelessness, and suicide. Pending remedial steps by the company to address this app that can cause harm to the LGBTQ community, the CEI rating is suspended.

* During the CEI survey cycle, the HRC Foundation became aware of an app distributed in Google's Play Store that supports the practice of so-called "conversion therapy." Sometimes known as "reparative therapy," so-called "conversion therapy" includes a range of dangerous and discredited practices that falsely claim to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression. Such practices have been rejected by every mainstream medical and mental health organization for decades. Minors are especially vulnerable, and conversion therapy can lead to depression, anxiety, drug use, homelessness, and suicide. Pending remedial steps by the company to address this app that can cause harm to the LGBTQ community, the CEI rating is suspended.

HRC Foundation's Workplace Equality Program

The Workplace Equality Program Team, Authors

HRC Foundation's Workplace Equality Program is a nationally recognized source of expert information and advice on lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer workplace issues. It provides decision-makers with cutting-edge research, expert counsel, online resources, best practices information and on-site training and education. Program staff serve as trusted consultants to diversity professionals and other executives seeking to position their business as welcoming workplaces that respect all employees, regardless of sexual orientation and gender identity or expression. The Workplace Equality Program also makes available the expertise of the HRC Business Council for invaluable peer-to-peer advice.

Beck Bailey, Director, Workplace Equality Program he/him/his

Beck Bailey serves as Director of the Human Rights Campaign Foundation's Workplace Equality Program which focuses on helping America's largest and most successful business become more lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer (LGBTQ) inclusive through direct consultation and education as well as research and publication on corporate best practices. He regularly supports corporate stakeholders – from the C-suite to the shop floor – in building greater LGBTQ-inclusion through public speaking, facilitated workshops, customized training and in one-on-one consultation.

Since joining HRC in 2014, Beck has engaged hundreds of corporations in deepening their impact by supporting legislative action to create workplace protections for LGBTQ people or to actively oppose legislative efforts to undermine equality.

Prior to joining the Human Rights Campaign in 2014, Beck spent 25 years in the private sector in operations and change management roles. A lifelong LGBTQ advocate and out transgender man, he often speaks about his personal experience as a way to increase awareness and understanding. Beck proudly serves on the Advisory Board for Reaching Out MBA (ROMBA). He holds a BS in Management from Virginia Tech and an MBA from the

Isenberg School of Management at UMass Amherst. Milagros Chirinos, Associate Director, Global Business Programs she/her/hers

Milagros Chirinos joined HRC in January of 2017. As Associate Director, Milagros leads HRC's Equidad MX and CL – two in-country programs designed to promote LGBTQ-inclusive workplaces in Mexico and Chile respectively. She brings her background in communication and media relations to expand the organization's global network and enhance international business relations. In her three-year tenure, Chirinos has deepened HRC's fieldwork in the Latin American region and has played a leadership role supporting the HRC Global and Workplace programs.

Chirinos was born in Lima, Peru and started her professional career in media and journalism in South Florida. She holds a master's degree in Hispanic Literature and Culture from the University of South Florida.

Raina Nelson, Manager, Corporate Equality Programs they/them/theirs

Raina Nelson joined the Workplace Team in July 2019. As the Workplace Equality Program Manager, Raina helps to oversee key initiatives, primarily the Corporate Equality Index. They work closely with survey participants to improve the policies, benefits, and practices of some of America's largest companies. Before joining HRCF, Raina began their professional career conducting research on gender equity in education and the workplace. Raina graduated from New College of Florida in 2016 with a Bachelor's degree in Political Science with a focus on the intersection of social identity and U.S. political ideology.

Courtney Stanford, Assistant, Workplace Equality Program she/her/hers

Courtney Stanford joined the Workplace Team in January 2020. As the Workplace Equality Program Assistant, Courtney supports the team by assisting companies with the Corporate Equality Index and completing daily administrative tasks. She graduated from the University of South with a BA in International Studies and a minor in Environmental Policy.

Special Thanks

Thank you to Jay Brown, Senior Vice President for Programs, Research and Training for his leadership and stewardship of the Workplace Equality Program.

A special thank you to our HRC Foundation colleagues Taylor Brown, Alison Delpercio, Lynnie Delpercio, Anela Galic, Marcos Garcia, Charlie Girard, Keo O'Neal and Sam Park for their assistance validating this year's survey submissions.

We appreciate the work of our intern, Bailey White, who meticulously proofread the Corporate Equality Index.

Thank you to HRC staff Liz Halloran, Elliott Kozuch, Hayley Miller, Chris Sgro, and Carolyn Simon for communication, press and media guidance.

Thank you to Alec Carrasco for his database expertise and always finding a way to make it all work.

Thank you to Robert Villafior and Ashley Sudney for editorial and design guidance.

Thank you to Asia Arminio, Jennifer Pike Bailey, Nicole Greenidge-Hoskins, Andrea Levario, Robin Maril, Molly Meegan, Cathryn Oakley, David Stacy, Sarah Warbelow and JoDee Winterhof for legal and policy guidance.

The Corporate Equality Index 2020 was beautifully and efficiently designed by Tony Frye Design.

The Human Rights Campaign Business Advisory Council was founded in 1997. Members provide expert advice and counsel to the HRC Workplace Equality Program on lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer workplace issues based on their business experience and knowledge.
